The Highs and the Lows the Rocky Road We All Grew Up On Charcoal

This drawing has the moon the mountains cliff and small hills. Every part represents something the river is life and the mountains the journey we make through as we get older. The cliff represents the end of our life and the moon the light that we have in our darkest moments which is hope. This represents 2020 for me because it made me have to slow down and appreciate the small things as well as the big things. And we learned that this was one of life's many challenges just like those mountains. And just like the flow of the river gets faster near the end of its journey, we did as well and got control out of the chaos we call life.
